The official newsletter of the Church of the Epiphany

Welcoming all, we are building a dedicated Christian community that seeks to know God and to serve others.

And on the Eighth Day ...

The Reverend Jennifer A. Reddall

We get the idea of sabbaticals and Sabbath time from the first creation story in Genesis, which recounts God’s deeds in creating the world over the first six days, and then concludes, “And on the seventh day... God rested.” (Genesis 2:2)

What happened on the eighth day? I guess God got back to work.

I am feeling very much like I am living the eighth day upon my return from sabbatical. I have rested – and now I have a full week of labor ahead of me. But I am eager for it (at least, most of it). I am so grateful to all our parish leaders – both clergy and lay – for continuing our thriving parish life while I was away. And now we reunite to continue ministry on this corner of 74th Street and York Avenue.

So much has been happening here and is recounted elsewhere in this Manifest: Vacation Bible School, Raising my Voice-Kin, work the Vestry is doing with our Budget... and I am particularly grateful that New York-Presbyterian’s outreach department has started facilitating some medical support for our Wednesday Dinner Program guests. Last week, they provided HIV testing and free clinic referrals to all our guests who desired them. More is to come. Slowly, Epiphany’s ministry and our relationship with our hospital neighbors, is growing.

And it is doing so in a world in chaos and conflict. It was good to spend time outside the United States on my sabbatical, both to encounter the spirit of other nations, and also to hear how they see the United States, Americans, and Christians in general. I look forward to spending time presenting some of my experiences this fall, particularly those in the Holy Land and in “Nature’s Cathedral,” Yosemite National Park. And now it is good to be home.

One highlight of my sabbatical was reading The Book of Joy: Lasting Happiness in a Changing World, a recounting of conversations with the Dalai Lama and Archbishop Desmond Tutu in Dharamsala in 2015. These two giants of our age are good friends, and though they do not share a common faith, they share a common approach to moving through adversity, showing compassion, and discovering joy under the most unlikely of circumstances.

I would like to declare this fall a “Season of Joy” at Epiphany, not despite the chaos of our world, but because of it. It is often in times of conflict, hatred, and the exposure of evil that we are most open to God’s abiding presence, and I believe the wisdom of these two men of God will bestow fortitude on every reader.

So I invite you to join us as a congregation in reading The Book of Joy. To help us do that, we are going to have copies available for purchase (or borrowing) on Renewal Sunday, September 17. Beginning on September 28, I will be posting a weekly meditation on a section of the book on my blog, and invite Epiphany members who are reading the book along with me, to share their thoughts and reflections in the comments.

This will be our first experiment with online Christian Formation—and I think it may be fruitful. So many of us travel, or care for children, or have reasons that prevent us from going to our Rector’s Forums on Sunday morning. This is a way that every member of Epiphany can connect, read, and pray on their own schedule—but still meet in a common place. And every Sunday at coffee hour you can connect with your friends face to face and continue the conversation about joy, despair, struggle, compassion, and seeking meaning in life. This book will help give us a common experience and common language to discuss our age with hope—an approach that that clearly points to The Book:

“May the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, so that you may abound in hope by the power of the Holy Spirit.” Romans 15:13

Music Notes for September

Larry J. Long, Organist & Choirmaster

All choirs begin regular Thursday rehearsals on September 14 – details below this column.

I always look forward to choir season beginning each September, and the beautiful and inspiring music presented each week! I hope to see some new members joining to sing, as well as our committed regulars returning. Some of our volunteers have sung for many, many years!

Epiphany Choir members take note: We will sing on Sunday, September 10 at the 10:30am service, rehearsing at 9:30am in the sanctuary.

Pentecost 14, Sunday, September 10 Epiphany Choir sings my setting of Peace in Heaven for the choral introit, and leads the singing of Psalm 149 to a plainsong tone. The choir sings Draw us in the Spirit's Tether by Harold W. Friedell (1905-1958) at the offering, and Maurice Duruflé's (1902-1986) Ubi caritas at the communion.

September 17, Pentecost 15, we observe Renewal Sunday with the choral introit God be in my head by Henry Walford Davies (1869-1941). Alex Bonnin and Kirsten Ott, bass and alto section leaders, will lead us in singing the Canticle of Miriam and Moses following the first reading. The choir sings the Spiritual Wade in the water arranged by Bruce Trinkle (b. 1949) at the offering, and Christus factus est (Christ humbled himself) by the Italian baroque composer Giovanni Battista Casali (1715-1792)

Pentecost 16, September 24, Epiphany Choir leads Psalm 105:1-6, 37-45 in a setting from A HymnTune Psalter. The Spiritual Steal away will be sung at the offering, and Jean Berger's (1909-2002) The eyes of all wait upon thee at the communion.

The Children's Choir will sing for the first time this season on Sunday, October 1, when we bless pets and observe the day of Francis of Assisi, Friar.

What kind of church do we want to be?

Kathrun O'Neal Dunham, Warden

Six years ago, Gib and I brought Reece and Rye to Epiphany for our first service. Tucked into the back of the sanctuary, I was immediately struck by the ease and warmth of the Christmas Eve service. There were probably about 60 of us worshipping, and at least a quarter of us were children. I cherished the opportunity to let my rowdy boys move, be near the almost life-sized crèche, and feel, first-hand, the story of the birth of our Savior. Six years have passed since my boys (then 5 and 2) sat in the back of the sanctuary that Christmas Eve. This year, my growing boys served as acolytes during the Christmas season, and our sanctuary was full at the early Christmas Eve service. My, how times have changed.

In the last six years, your Vestry, a group of lay leaders, has sought to diligently steward the resources of this church to ensure our long-term sustainability. But, just as you would in your home budget, the Vestry is obligated to ensure that the resources we spend to maintain and grow our ministry do not outstrip the resources we are able to bring in. As our ministry grows, so too must our annual giving.

At the Warden's Conference this summer, Bishop Shin spoke about the key factors for growth in parishes. They were factors, I noted, at work in Epiphany: a sense of mission and purpose; strong leadership (both clergy and lay); nurturing new and existing members; active engagement outside the church; and a willingness to change and adapt. Can you see us in this list? Our sense of mission and purpose has never been stronger – I can feel it during every Sunday worship, and it echoes throughout the week in the parish hall when we feed the hungry on Wednesdays and on Saturdays when we minister to those affected by the criminal justice system. Our rector has returned from a sabbatical with renewed spirit and our staff and lay leaders ensured a seamless three months of hospital ministry, BBQ's, movie nights, and music. Our church is represented in local school fairs, and the hospitals are partnering with our meal program to ensure healthcare for that vulnerable population.

But I would most like to draw your attention to Bishop Shin's last point: a willingness to change and adapt. Epiphany has changed, and we must adapt. We have made the church more accessible, celebrating a new ramp that ensures dignity and access for all. We have filled the sanctuary for Evensongs, reaching out into our community through music. Our Vacation Bible School is bursting with children, and many of our Day School families have joined our parish, filling the sanctuary with the babble of joyful children. We have grown, and we have changed.

This Fall, the Vestry will look at our budget and try to decide: What kind of church do we want to be? We will set ambitious goals for New Consecration Sunday, and we will ask this parish to listen to what God is calling them to give to sustain this church. Asking ourselves "what kind of church do we want to be," we will also prayerfully try to decide how to reduce the deficit in our budget. None of the members of this Vestry want to be responsible for cutting back on our ministry. We are all, to a member, faithful believers in the unique spiritual home that has grown here at Epiphany. We recognize that any cut we make will have a real and felt loss. We prefer to feed the growth, but we need this parish's help to do so.

When we are called on this Fall to make a decision about our annual pledge to Epiphany, I hope everyone of us can keep in mind that this is not a "donation." This is an answering to a call. It is a commitment to growth. It is a response to the question: "THIS is the kind of church I want Epiphany to be."

Sharing a Hope for a Better Tomorrow at Epiphany

submitted by Chris Abelt, Warden

One of things I like the most about being a member of Church of the Epiphany is when we gather as a community and share a collective hope for a better tomorrow. The annual Blessing of the Backpacks held in the fall exemplifies this wonderful practice.

The Church will be holding the Blessing of the Backpacks for the kids returning to school on Sunday September 10, 2017. This got me thinking back a couple of years when my son William was entering his sophomore year in high school.

To be honest William was far from a good student his freshman year of high school. I recall that he was too busy trying to entertain his classmates to pay much attention to the teachers. Getting him to focus on homework was another struggle all together. The hope of getting him into a half-way decent college was only a dream at that point, based on his blazing 2.7 GPA.

But I had faith he might come around, and brought him to the Blessing of the Backpacks at Epiphany that fall.

It was quite a sight, as William had grown about a foot that summer and now was much taller than all the other kids at the altar. Jennifer dutifully reached up and blessed William and his backpack as he towered over her, and off to school he went.

Something changed for the better that year. William gained interest in his studies. His teachers noticed he was more engaged in the classroom discussion and spent less time goofing off. We didn't have to badger him to do his homework as often. Miraculously his grades started to get better.

The trend continued into his Junior year of High School. We were back at the altar for the Blessing of the Backpacks that year and his grades and study habits continued to improve. Eventually he got in to Wake Forest University. He has become an honor student at Wake Forest, which has the nickname "Work Forest." It's amazing. He's joined the ROTC program at Wake, trained at Fort Knox, KY this past summer and he's thriving. I am thankful that those backpack blessings at Epiphany seem to have worked so well.

In the spirit of hoping for a better tomorrow, I'm now looking forward to the annual Blessing of the Animals. My dog Gizmo can be quite rambunctious and sometimes unfriendly to strangers visiting our apartment, as he nips at their heels trying to herd them away from us. Maybe a blessing from Jennifer will help correct Gizmo's inappropriate behavior. In the meantime I will enjoy Gizmo's unconditional love while William is away at college.

Episcopal Relief and Development
submitted by the Rev. Jennifer A. Reddall

As we all watch the flooding from Hurricane Harvey in Houston and elsewhere in Texas, know that Episcopal Relief and Development will be working to help affected families for years to come. I've made my donation, and I encourage you to do so as well.

Go online to www.episcopalrelief.org to make your donation.

Our own Sarah Condon, who Epiphany sponsored for ordination about eight years ago, lives in Houston with her husband Josh, who is the Rector of Holy Spirit, Houston. Sarah evacuated safely to her family in Mississippi with their children; Josh has stayed behind to tend to their house and his flock.

Be our light in the darkness, O Lord, and in your great mercy defend us from all perils and dangers; for the Love of your only Son, our savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

The Blessing of Animals is October 1st.

We care about all of God's creatures. So, on October 1st, Jennifer will bless all pets by name at both our 8:30 and 10:30 a.m. services and at 5 p.m. Evensong. The bond of love and connection between God and all his creation will be made even stronger. Not just with our four-legged friends and those with two we're always preaching about.

But even those with eight.

On Becoming the Beloved Community Church of Epiphany celebrates Raising My Voice-Kin graduation, commits to criminal justice reform

On Saturday, August 12, the Church of the Epiphany in New York City affirmed its commitment to criminal justice reform and celebrated the graduation of ten participants from the Raising My Voice – Kin program, a leadership and public speaking skills training for individuals whose loved ones are currently or have previously been incarcerated. Circles of Support, a Harlem-based reentry partnership founded by Episcopal churches in New York City and the Interfaith Center of New York in conjunction with the J.C. Flowers Foundation, helped facilitate the training and graduation.

For five weeks the Church of the Epiphany has hosted program participants every Saturday, offering childcare and a hot meal to accompany the Raising My Voice – Kin workshop. Church members served as volunteer coaches for participants as they honed their descriptions of mass incarceration’s impact on their own families, in the hopes they may go on to speak in churches, colleges, and NGOs and share their unique stories to advocate for change.

Deacon Anne Auchincloss and Carron Donohue of the Church of the Epiphany helped bring the program to the parish after a period of consultation with the Church of Heavenly Rest. The Church of Heavenly Rest has previously hosted Raising My Voice, a similar but more intensive program for formerly incarcerated individuals. In partnership with Linda Steele and Circles of Support, Deacon Auchincloss and Ms. Donohue initiated Raising My Voice –

Kin, a new program with a specific focus on the families of incarcerated men and women.

Following the invocation by Reverend Jennifer Reddall and remarks by Deacon Jacqueline Sanchez-Shabazz, Linda Steele, Program Coordinator at Circles of Support, formally introduced the program and its graduates. Asking volunteer coaches to stand and be recognized, Ms. Steele thanked them for their essential role in making the program possible and praised their work, noting that “Epiphany volunteers brought the embodiment of their church – Family – to each training.”

Two graduates of the Raising My Voice – Kin program, Tashana Perkins and Melinda Fuentes, delivered keynote speeches, stressing the difficulty of raising children alone and concluding with demands for increased support for prison programming, specifically family counseling when loved ones return home, and support groups for young men with incarcerated fathers.

Church volunteers spoke to their enthusiasm for a continued partnership with Circles of Support and the Raising My Voice – Kin program. As Deacon Sanchez-Shabazz noted, “I have been looking for an outside ministry, and connection, love, and strength. Working with these courageous families has helped me to find it.”

This year’s “Renewal Sunday” (formerly “Homecoming Sunday”) will feature information about select ministry opportunities following the 10:30am service, and the chance for all baptized members to list their names in Epiphany’s new Parish Register. This summer we ran out of room in the Baptisms section of our Parish Register, which began recording membership and sacraments in the 1920s. Be among the first to list their names in the new register; and if possible, bring your baptismal date and location to include!
